LONDON, Dec. 15. (CP)—In a broadcast to British listeners, the government today said that the country was "round the corner" in its recovery from the war.

"I am the last to start cheering before the game is over," said Morrison, adding that things were "not going too badly."

"Let's look at the facts and figures and be proud of our progress as a people," the deputy prime minister said. "The fact that 1,000,000 more Britons now were employed than in the pre-war period, 'manpower' of higher standards than before the war."

Despite all difficulties Britain is exporting by volume nearly one-fifth more than pre-war exports.

No great country had such a post-war record of freedom from industrial breakdowns and stoppages as Britain.

"No country except the United States has produced such immense sums and sent so many goods to relieve war-stricken peoples."

"In Europe it is the British government which has looked for the leadership and the skill to enable a group of sovereign nations to create and put forward the great joint plan for reconstruction."

Which Mr. Marshall has asked. "We know that the difficulties and sacrifices of the war are petty compared with the value and possibilities of our peace and free democracy."

For that we will fight. That is the kind of a people we are."

Job Pressmen Strike in Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 15. (CP)—About 700 printing pressmen employed in more than 100 Toronto newspapers today went on strike for higher wages today as pickets formed outside the affected plants.

Union officials said that one small firm signed an agreement today but the rest refused their intention to do so.

An admiralty spokesman today said that the submarine U-107, with a displacement of 1,000 tons, was sunk by the British ship HMS Challenger and HMS Maestri on December 14.

The strike was endorsed by a vote of 417 to 16 at a meeting Saturday of the Printing Pressmen's Union (AFL) in their demands for a basic wage of $14.2 an hour for cylinder pressmen.

The strike, if entirely effective, would affect virtually all forms of printed matter in Toronto except city three daily newspapers.

The Canadian Home Journal, the Toronto Evening Telegram and the Toronto Star are expected to be affected.

Lord Baldwin Dies

This was during his first term as prime minister when he toured Canada, accompanied part of the way by the Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VIII, now Duke of Windsor, who came over that year to open the Canadian National Exhibition.

In 1932, while Lord president of the council in the Ramsay MacDonald national government, Lord Baldwin visited the United Kingdom delegation at the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa where his speeches emphasized his reputation as an apostle of trade within the empire.

BETTER KNOWN TO THE PUBLIC Stanley Baldwin, he was created Earl Baldwin of Bewley in 1937 when he severed most of his links with public life. Since then his health had been failing and his appearances at the meetings of various charities and other organizations in which he was interested had become rare.

Lord Baldwin was a leading figure in the abdication crisis of 1936 when King Edward VIII renounced the throne to his brother, the present King.

The prime minister held urgent consultations with the heads of the Dominion governments, had audiences with the King himself and finally won the assent of the Commons with King Edward's message of abdication.

During the same term of office Baldwin emerged one of Britain's most outstanding statesmen.

ANOTHER EVENT in his long and distinguished career as a public servant was his leadership of his government through the dark days of the 1928 general election. When the strike ended Baldwin made a radio broadcast calling upon the country's people who had happened and to face the future without class bitterness.

During the same term of office Baldwin's poor law, unchanged for years, was completely revised. The period also saw gradual improvement of the economic condition of the country.

In his youth Baldwin was associated with his family's tree fowling, Bewley, Wiltshire.

He was 41 before he entered political life as the Conservative member for the Bewley division which he represented in parliament for 29 years, during 12 of which he was prime minister.

Nothing in his long political career approached the decision he and the late Compton Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, presented to Edward VIII in December, 1936.

Lord Baldwin and the archbishop told the monarch he had only this choice—abdication or renunciation of Wallis Warfield Simpson. The King chose abdication and married the divorced American, now the Duchess of Windsor.

George VI, Britain's present monarch, then succeeded the throne. LORD BALDWIN'S death in his sleep came 11 years after the abdication. For two weeks before that event, Lord Baldwin had worked night and day behind the scenes.

Then on Dec. 10, 1936, he stood before the house of commons. In his hand was Edward's message of abdication. On his tongue was a story that had gripped the world. He was on the verge of tears.

True to what he conceived to be his trust to the Empire, Baldwin moved that the message of abdication be considered, saying: "No more grave message has ever been received by parliament and no more difficult, and I might say, more important task has ever been imposed on a prime minister."

Baldwin said on Nov. 16 he told Edward he did not believe the country would approve the marriage and, in the choice of a queen, the voice of the people must be heard.

"Then," Baldwin proceeded, "His Majesty said to me... 'I am going to marry Mrs. Simpson, and I am prepared to go.'" attend future conventions of the Civil Service Association of Alberta was reduced from a hotly contested clause by the convention Saturday.

THIS DECREASE in numbers gives small branches two delegates but restricts the number to attend the conventions from Edmonton, the province's dominant branch.

Officers of the association for the next two years will be president: Al Peart, Edmonton; 1st vice-president: N. Saffra, Calgary; 2nd vice-president: H. C. French, Edmonton; J. H. Holloway will represent the civil servant on the pension board for a two year term.

ELECTED FOR A ONE-YEAR TERM were: A. D. Bruce, Edmonton; H. R. Clark, Edmonton; C. G. Edwards, Edmonton; George Hudson, Calgary; Miss D. E. Johnson, Edmonton; J. M. McCray, Edmonton; Clifford Priestly, Edmonton; F. F. Young, Ponoka; J. L. Bergman, Edmonton and W. C. Resner, Medicine Hat.

Election of officers for two years is in line with the changed constitution.

A resolution urging the government to adopt a five-day week with overtime pay and a standing vote was called before the convention approved of the request. Those opposing the resolution believed service to the public would suffer if government offices were to close all day on Saturday.

Those supporting the resolution thought the original idea behind the five-day week was to create work and other points to the advantage of increased leisure time and that a more contented civil service would result from more time off.

The association also requested the government to make an "on-the-spot" survey of wage and salary classifications.

Efficient resolutions dealing with the increased cost of living were consolidated into one resolution which asked the provincial government to study the problems created by the price rise with a view to salary adjustments to maintain standards of living.

It was suggested by another resolution which was endorsed that profits taxes be reintroduced by the federal government and that income tax exemptions be increased.

Other resolutions dealing with such factors as pensions, mileage rates, overtime pay and others were dealt with.

Then Lord Baldwin resigned to Stourport, the place of his birth.

Lord Baldwin began his rapid advancement in politics when he became parliamentary private secretary to Bonar Law when the latter was chancellor of the exchequer in 1916.

As financial secretary to the treasury the following year he made a gift of £200,000 (£2,000,000) toward the redemption of the national debt. The gift, about one-fifth of his estate, was made under conditions of great secrecy and it was not until years afterwards that it leaked out.

In 1922, after the downfall of the coalition government of David Lloyd George, he became chancellor of the exchequer. He became prime minister when Bonar Law resigned.

LORD BALDWIN'S first government did not last long. He went to the country after a speech urging introduction of a modified system of tariffs to help British industry. His party remained the largest in the house at the new election, but the Liberals decided to support the Labour party and Baldwin resigned the premiership to the late Ramsay MacDonald.

When MacDonald went to the country after only 287 days in office and failed to secure a majority, Lord Baldwin returned to office at the head of the largest majority parliament had ever seen.

Leader of the Conservative party from 1923 to 1927, he was instrumental in giving 5,000,000 women the vote by his equal franchise bill, which put all women from 21 to 30 on the polling list.

THE PEER is survived by two sons and four daughters. The heir to his title is Viscount Corvendale, a labor member of the house of commons, whose elevation to the House of Lords will cause a objection for the commons seat. Countess Baldwin died in June 1945. They had celebrated their golden wedding anniversary three years before. Cremation is to take place in Birmingham, Wednesday or Thursday.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee said last night upon learning of the death of Earl Baldwin that the former prime minister was "one of the outstanding statesmen of our time and a great parliamentarian."

Anthony Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative party, said Baldwin was "a great house of commons man and he rendered devoted service to a country in many fields of statesmanship."

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a tribute last night to Lord Baldwin said that in his death in Britain there had passed from the scene of world politics "one who in his day was foremost as an empire statesman."

"Throughout his public life, he had an understanding of commonwealth relations, second to none and guided the development of the commonwealth along lines which made possible the close co-operation which prevailed in the testing time of 1942."

Baldy, the Horse, Crosses Up Science By Beating Irishman in Tug-of-War

WATERLOO, Ont., Dec. 14. —A 1,500-pound plow-horse and a 225-pound Irishman engaged in a tug-of-war Saturday and the horse, rather reasonably, won.

But many of the 2,000 spectators who came through a driving rain to see the battle were not back. Science said the man should win, they said. There was even some talk that the horse had taken unfair advantage.

Baldy, the horse, stood at one end of a field, a 300-foot rope attached to his harness. At the other end of the rope, flat on the ground, his feet braced against a wooden block, was Chester Fitzwater, a red-headed Irishman of Lebanon, Ore.

The theory of the country-

folk, who bet an estimated $15,000 on the Irishman, was that the angle of the rope would be so slight the horse wouldn't have enough reactive power to pull Fitzwater at an upright position.

The theory was backed enough to make the Irishman the betting favorite until just before the event, when a horse breeder's association came in with $1,000 on the horse.

When the gun went off, Fitzwater braced himself and started moving. The rope, hooked to the waist band of Fitzwater's chest harness, slid slightly to one side as the stark drew in.

Rules allowed the horse three minutes. In exactly 30 seconds Baldy pulled the rope taut and up came Fitzwater into the air and 10 feet along in the mud.

That should have settled the hay-field argument which led to the whole thing. But it didn't.

Some folks claimed the rope's slip away from the center of Fitzwater's body was a bit of skulduggery by the horse. Others contended the horse lunged.

"We'll have a re-match any time," said Baldy's owner. "We're not afraid. Baldy would have won with his tail."

Babson Defies His Magic Circle

BABSON PARK, Pa., Dec. 13. —AP.—Roger Babson, an economist, said Saturday he has deposited $100 in each of 30 banks in what he calls "magic circle" cities in the midwestern United States.

Babson said the 30 cities, selected by his statistician, are in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Oklahoma.

With Eureka, Kans. as the center, a circle was drawn with a 100-mile radius, Babson's "magic circle."

This area he described as being safest from the third world war, if and when it comes.

Everyone Can Learn To Speak In Public

Are you one of those "I should have said..." people? On the way home from a club meeting or a gathering of friends do you envision the conversational gaps you thought of saying but just couldn't get out?

One thing about speaking, if you begin awkwardly it's difficult to get back on the beam. Don't apologize to your audience for being before them such as "I won't take much of your time." Begin boldly with a provocative statement of fact which will lead into your topic and take your audience along with it.

Speak and me $1.50 a pound this morning" would be a slapping beginning for a discussion on inflation and the cost of living today.

So much of your success as a person depends upon your ability to express yourself. The more brilliant member of a club may fail miserably as orator material because of her haltingly awkward manner on the platform. She would hardly be the one to represent her club at conventions or important round-table discussions. And all because of her lack of speaking power.

Our new Reader Service booklet No. 85 covers speaking points and ways to overcome jittery and awkward conversation.

Ask Explanation Canteen Fund

TORONTO, Dec. 13. —CP.—Ontario Council of the Canadian Corps Association meeting here Saturday passed a resolution asking an explanation from the Ontario government of the status of the 1914-18 canteen fund, charging that through mismanagement the fund had dwindled from $170,000 in 1927 to $10,000 last year.

The convention further resolved that all payments to veterans from the fund be suspended until the recommendations of a brief prepared by a special committee are acted upon.

Richard Michener, provincial secretary in the Ontario government, said last night the Ontario government is conferring with the federal government to have the canteen status under which the fund is regulated, revised to deal with the Ontario section of the fund more satisfactorily.

Although the trustees of the Ontario fund are appointed by the provincial government, the fund was set up by federal legislation in 1925.

One of the charges of the special committee's brief was that administration costs appear to be out of proportion. It said that for every $100 paid out to veterans in 1927-1931 the trustees received $12 in the period 1932 to 1936. In 1937 the trustees received $65 for every $100 paid out to veterans.

The policy throughout the entire 1914-1918 veterans' fund, he said,

Yule Tide Trees Cost More—There's Plenty

By The Canadian Press

When the kiddies whoop on Christmas morning to find their presents stacked under a glittering tree it will be the same old story to the family breadwinner—this year that tree will cost more than in the past.

Scotch pine, white spruce and balsam are popular in Ontario. Scotch pine, growing in popularity, has been the most popular tree in the province for many years.

Because of its superior qualities, the needles stay in longer than other varieties—the pine is the choice item in retail stores. A nine-foot tree selling for $10 or more.

Some Toronto merchants also supply trees sprayed with paint for those who don't want to gather up fallen needles. These luxuries, ranging from midnight blue to a brilliant silver cost $5 for a five-foot tree.

At Winnipeg prices run from $1.50 to $2 for an average spruce and up to $3 for an exceptionally good tree from 30 cents to $2 higher than last year. The trees, previously sold on city markets, are being handled by some stores and by door-to-door sellers this year.

Beginning last year a good supply of trees from 50 cents to $4, about the same as last year.

Alberta cuts few trees, depending on British Columbia for supplies with white spruce the most popular variety.

At Vancouver street sales will not start until Dec. 15 under the city's permit system. The average six-foot tree for homes is expected to sell from $1 to $1.50, an increase of 50 cents to 25 per cent over last year.
